Alumni Profile

Frank Barnett

By Suzanne Hartman

- When Frank Barnett, '36 was denied active service during World War II because of a physical disability, he built a copper mine instead which produced enough copper to make five battleships.
- In 1975, Modern Railroads magazine called him Man of the Year due to his work on rail reorganization which led to the formation of Conrail.
- In 1977 an article in Forbes magazine paints Barnett as little short of brilliant in the way in which he strengthened and consolidated Union Pacific Railroad into a calm and sturdy giant.
- And in March, 1978, he received the Seely Award from the Transportation Association of America for his work on the Rail Reorganization Act of 1973.

Barnett was born in Fairport Harbor, Lake County, Ohio, the son of a doctor who graduated from Western Reserve Medical School in 1912. After Barnett's graduation from the School of Law in 1936, he worked as a tax lawyer in Cleveland for five years before moving to a New York law firm.

"I had been in New York a month," Barnett began, sitting behind his desk in his commodious office at Shea Gould on Madison Avenue, "when I applied for a Navy commission; I'd been studying Russian for two or three years. But I never got in because of a disability, so in lieu of service, I built this copper mine at Pompanoosak, Vermont, 17 miles from White River Junction, New Hampshire.

"I bought $1 million of mining machinery in five days, got it set up and then didn't have the labor I needed. So I borrowed an airplane from the Air Force, recruited 250 Newfoundland miners, brought them back and put them to work.

"That first spring, it was too cold to build, so I rented a big top from Ringling Brothers circus for them to work under.

"By mid-1942, we were producing 10,000 pounds a month. I kept the mine until 1948 and then sold it to a Canadian company."

Union Pacific Successes

At the law firm, Barnett was representing Union Pacific on taxes. In 1953, he became their general counsel. In 1955, he was elevated to vice president and then to chairman and chief executive officer on January 1, 1967.

At that time, Forbes magazine reported he "is determined that the company shall no longer devote its talents exclusively to the care and feeding of the railroad. Whether Barnett will

In a 1977 article, Forbes had concluded, "When Barnett retires . . . he will in his quiet way have carried out one of the most successful management transformations of recent years. He has taken a railroad and turned it into a highly diversified, highly profitable company and has done so without running up huge debt, without diluting stockholder's equity and without the helter-skelter acquiring that brought so many conglomerates to grief."

Natural resources activities of the company, accounting for about 20 percent of its earnings in 1969, today account for almost 50 percent of earnings, which after adjustment for a two-for-one stock split in 1977, nearly tripled per share, from $1.88 to $5.55, in 1978. Total earnings have grown from $84.4 in 1969 to $264.1 million in 1978.

Asked by Forbes in 1977 what he thought might go wrong for his successors, Barnett replied, "'Hopefully nothing.' And he said it," Forbes notes, "not with an air of fatuous optimism, but in the tone of a man who knows that he has built solidly and well."

Rail Reorganization

Barnett's vision was wider, though, than the future of a single railroad. In an effort to help avoid nationalization of the faltering industry, in 1973 he began work on a plan for rail reorganization.

It was incorporated with few changes into the Shoup-Adams Bill, passed by Congress in December, 1973, and became the Railroad Reorganization Act of 1974. The operating entity of the Act, Conrail, went into operation in 1976. It was because of the work Barnett did on this plan that Modern Railroads made him their Man of the Year in 1975.

Although UP has compulsory retirement at 65, Barnett is still director and a member of the executive committee. Because he did not want to retire, he became of counsel with Shea, Gould, Climenko & Casey last year.

In October of 1978, Mayor Koch of New York appointed him chairman of the New York City interdepartmental group to expedite and improve rail freight transportation in and out of the city.

He lives with his wife, Wana, in a Manhattan apartment and on weekends at their home in Ridgefield, Connecticut. His son, John, is the vice-president of City Bank in New York, and a daughter, Pamela, a writer, lives in Washington. His warm and gracious wife, formerly a dancer, maintains a strong interest in theatre and dance.

Recollections of Law School

"One of my fondest memories of the law school," said Barnett smiling, "is the personal relationship I had with Bill Dawson and Fletcher Andrews. Dawson was a peach," he said, "and I had the pleasure of seeing Andrews on a recent trip back to Cleveland."

"There were a great group of men when I was there. Professor Finrock was a real joy. Throckmorton was amazing. He put together the original Ohio Code. He ruined his eyes doing it, though even after he went blind, he continued to teach."

"When I was in law school, I organized a sponsor system in which a practicing lawyer would sort of adopt a law student. I went around to see a lot of lawyers, about sixty-six of them. I actually found one lawyer for each student. As we were kicking the thing off, Dawson and I had a dinner at the University Club for all the lawyers and the whole senior class. Bill Dawson got up to explain the sponsor system, turned to me and said, 'You can talk about this better than I can.' So I gave the speech."

What about the law school today?

"They're splendid. The faculty is splendid. The dean is turning out to be a very fine leader, forward-looking. The energy of the faculty is so high that many alumni feel like doing something for the school."

Barnett is chairman of the New York Metropolitan Area Alumni Campaign for RESOURCES and "almost 100 percent of those solicited in the city for leadership gifts came through," he reported with satisfaction.

Perhaps that is partly because a man of the stature of Frank Barnett has been helping with that task.

LAW ANNUAL FUND

The 1978-79 Law Annual Fund was the most successful in its 22-year history. As of June 30, the fund totalled $198,740 in cash and confirmed pledges. There were 31 $1,000 donors.

This year's Telethon was held in February. During the four days of calling, $69,650 was raised by 111 callers. Four University Chairs were won by the top caller of each evening. This year's winners were Bingham Zellmer, '36; Mrs. Roberta Kramer, wife of Edward Kramer, '75; Joseph G. Schneider, '57; and Thomas B. Schneider, '69. An additional University chair was awarded to the top student caller, Donald F. Barney, Jr., '79.

WRU Telethon volunteers received an "Exceptional Achievement Award for Volunteer Involvement" from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education. The judges were impressed that CWRU mustered a group of approximately 1,200 volunteers for 40 nights of Telethon.

The success of this year's campaign will be celebrated on Thursday evening, September 20, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Theatrical Restaurant. That evening will also mark the initiation of the 1980 campaign.

THE CLASS OF 1974 SPONSORS FIRST REUNION

Members of the Class of 1974, the first class to attend all three years of law school in the new law building, sponsored a dinner in the upper rotunda of George Gund Hall. Twenty-three members of the class, spouses and guests were present.

Class of '74

CLASS REUNIONS

The Class of 1934, gathered in the faculty lounge in the Law School in June to celebrate the 45th anniversary of their graduation. William J. Kraus, who consistently organizes the '34 reunions, will now be busier. The class decided not to wait until the 50th, but to hold them every year.

The first of this year's reunion celebrations was held in the Mid-Day Club in downtown Cleveland. Mr. Richard F. T. Seaman was the chairman for the Class of 1939 40th reunion celebration.

LAW ALUMNI ANNUAL BANQUET

The reunion classes of 1954, 1959 and 1964 sponsored their reunion parties in enclosed areas of the law building in conjunction with the annual law alumni dinner dance on Saturday evening, May 19.

Myron W. Ulrich was this year's recipient of the Fletcher Reed Andrews Outstanding Alumnus of the Year Award. The presentation was made by Samuel T. Gaines, '23. Cray J. Coppins, Jr., '71 was elected President of the alumni association.

An invitation to join the law alumni for dancing and drinks was extended to those attending the Western Reserve College Banquet at the Garden Center and many came across the street to the law school to complete the evening.

MYRON W. ULRICH

1979 RECIPIENT OF THE FLETCHER REED ANDREWS OUTSTANDING ALUMNUS OF THE YEAR AWARD

In 1958 the Alpha Chapter of Tau Epsilon Rho legal fraternity established an award to be given each year to that individual whose "activities emulate the ideals and accomplishments of Dean Andrews." This year's recipient, Myron W. Ulrich, '36, clearly fits that description. Myron "Doc" Ulrich, was born in Greenville, Iowa, received his A.B. cum laude from Adelbert College in 1934, and the LL.B. degree from Western Reserve Law School in 1936. While a student at Adelbert, he was captain of the Reserve football team, and served on the Western Reserve Weekly editorial staff. He is a partner with the Cleveland law firm of Roubush, Adrion, Brown & Ulrich and is a former President of the Ohio State Bar Association.

Doc Ulrich has been active in both the Adelbert and Law School Alumni Associations. He is a former Chairman of the Adelbert Visiting Committee, a former member of both the Western Reserve University and Law School Alumni Board of Governors. He served as President of the Law Alumni Association this year and during 1977-78, he was Chairman of the Law School's Annual Fund Drive.

ANN G. KLEIN IS NEW PLACEMENT DIRECTOR

Ann G. Klein has been named placement director at the School of Law of Case Western Reserve University.

For the last five years she has been placement counselor and job developer for Resource, a non-profit job development and placement service for college-trained women.

Formerly she served as director of Resources For Women, a project of the University of Pennsylvania. She is a graduate of Chatham College in Pittsburgh where she graduated cum laude and was tapped by Phi Beta Kappa and Mortar Board.

In her new position, she will counsel students and develop and strengthen contacts with law firms, corporations and governmental agencies.

Klein is a member of the Board of Trustees of Resource, for the Cleveland Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and Hillel Foundation of Northeastern Ohio, and is a member of the executive committee of the Opera League of the Cleveland Opera Company. She is also a member of the Community Relations Committee of the Jewish Community Federation.

She, her husband, Steven, a physician, and their two sons live on Shelburne Road in Shaker Heights.

ALUMNI EVENTS

Spring 1979

Professor Sidney I. Picker, Jr. and The Honorable William J. Brown, Attorney General for the State of Ohio, spoke at the faculty/alumni luncheon meetings in downtown Cleveland this spring. Professor Picker discussed his recent trip to China as part of the ABA's task force on international trade and entertained questions from the audience. Attorney General Brown discussed the proposed organized crime bill in Ohio. This year's luncheon series was organized and will continue to be directed by Steven Kaufman, '75.

The Law School also sponsored a meeting for alumni in the Columbus area on Wednesday evening, April 4, at the newly renovated Old Governor's Mansion. In May, Professor Leon Cabinet spoke to Washington, D.C. area alumni on the subject of the concept of fairness in taxation at a luncheon meeting held in the National Press Club. The Law School also sponsored its annual breakfast meeting in conjunction with the Ohio State Bar Association in Toledo.

Professor Leon Cabinet and Roger Shumaker, '76

Charles E. Chaney, '36 and Virginia Chaney, '35

Howard Hopwood, '74 and Mr. Richard Terapak, Director, Ohio Ethics Commission

KEVIN McMAHON IS NEW DIRECTOR OF DEVELOPMENT

Kevin J. McMahon has replaced Tom Costello as director of development for the School of Law. McMahon assumed his duties July 1 when Costello left the University to become affiliated with the St. Louis Museum of Art.

McMahon has been assistant director of development and manager of alumni relations for Western Reserve College since September 1977.

He graduated from Hiram College and worked in the development field for Kirkland/Hamilton Colleges in upstate New York prior to coming to CWRU.

Both he and his wife, Kristin, are from Connecticut. They live in Cleveland Hts., and are the parents of a son, James Rossman, who was born two weeks after McMahon assumed his duties for the School of Law.

COMMENCEMENT DAY 1979

The Honorable Carol Bellamy, President of the City Council of New York City, spoke to the graduating class of 1979 on Monday, May 21, in Severance Hall. She was well received by the graduates, their families and guests. Dean Lindsey Cowen sponsored a dinner in his home for Ms. Bellamy on Sunday evening. On Monday, she was interviewed by Dorothy Fuldheim, TV news commentator, and appeared on the Morning Exchange, a Channel 5 TV talk show. She met Mayor Dennis Kucinich and spoke with local reporters.

Prior to the commencement exercises, members of the Barrister's Golden Circle, a group made up of alumni of fifty or more years, met with the law faculty for lunch to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Class of 1929.

Cary Jones, '79 is winner of the Harry A. and Sarah Blachman essay contest established at the Law School to foster an interest in solving problems of government. Mr. Jones won the contest with an essay entitled, "An Expansive Use of the Freedom of Information Act: Toward a New Partnership Between the Government and the Governed." Mr. Blachman, a 1921 graduate of the law school, is shown here with his wife, Sarah, and Jones on commencement day.

David A. Maier, '78, flew from Oregon to surprise his mother, Mrs. Evelyn G. Maier, '79, by presenting her diploma at this year's commencement exercises. Mrs. Maier, the mother of four children, received her bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from Swarthmore College in 1945. Mrs. Maier and her husband, Robert, an engineer with Union Carbide, live in Lakewood.

NOTEWORTHY

Samuel Dash and Donald Alexander, former Internal Revenue Commissioner visited Cleveland this spring and spoke with faculty, students and members of the Cleveland bar.

Donald Alexander

Samuel Dash

Professor Spencer Neth lectured on "The Role of Computerized Legal Research in Law School," as part of an ABA Conference on Legal Education, Curriculum for Change held in May at the University of Notre Dame. He will also be on leave one semester to be the IBM Law & Computer Fellow at Stanford Law School.

Professor Roger I. Abrams was named by U.S. District Judge, Leroy J. Contie, Jr. to be Special Master in Falls Stamp- ing and Welding Company v. the United Auto Workers, a labor case involving the amount of back pay due to more than 90 employees as a result of a ruling in a 1976 court case which was later reversed. In addition, Professor Abrams, a member of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service Labor Panel and the American Arbitration Association Labor Panel, arbitrated six labor disputes this summer.

Karen Nelson Moore, was selected to serve as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Greater Cleveland Bar Association.

Diane Hobbs and Karen Greve, both members of the Class of 1981, represented the law school in the ABA's Client Counseling Competition. Ms. Hobbs and Ms. Greve were the winners of an intraschool competition in which several teams interview a "client" under the supervision of practicing lawyers and other counseling professionals. The regional competition, in which 13 schools participated, was held in Gund Hall. CWRU's team won the competition. William Fee, '80 served as alternate. The team then travelled to the national competition in San Diego, under the sponsorship of the CWRU Law Alumni Association and the direction of Professor Wilbur C. Leatherberry, to participate in the national finals. Our team was one of just 12 that reached San Diego, and placed fourth nationally. The volunteer participation by our local attorneys who serve as judges makes these competitions a rewarding educational experience for our students and is greatly appreciated. The plaque which the team brought home can be seen in the law library display case.

Joan Stearns, '79 and Michael Morgan, '79, performed very well in this year's Philip C. Jessup Moot Court Competition. Ms. Stearns won the overall best advocate in the regional competition and Mr. Morgan won fifth best advocate in the national competition. The team placed second in the national competition. This year's problem involved the expropriation of patent rights.

Brent English, '80, was the winner of the Dean Walter T. Dunmore Competition this spring.

NEW FACULTY PROMOTIONS

Professors Paul C. Giannelli, Robert P. Lawry and Wilbur C. Leatherberry were all promoted to full professor with tenure this year.

Professor Giannelli received his B.A. degree from Providence College in 1967, a J.D. from the University of Virginia in 1970, a Master of Science in Forensic Science from the George Washington University in 1973, and an LL.M. from the University of Virginia in 1975. Upon his admission to the bar in 1970 he became a member of the JAG Corps of the U.S. Army and during the following five years served successively as defense counsel, General Courts Martial jurisdiction at Fort Devins, Massachusetts, as Prosecutor, General Courts Martial jurisdiction and Chief, Foreign Criminal Jurisdiction in Thailand, as a Fellow in the Forensic Medicine Program of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology and the George Washington University Forensic Science degree program, and as an Instructor in the Criminal Law Division of the JAG School in Charlottesville. He joined this faculty upon his release from active service in the fall of 1975. He teaches Criminal Procedure, Evidence, Trial Practice, Corrections and Prisoners' Rights Seminar.

Professor Robert P. Lawry began his teaching career at CWRU in 1975. He graduated from Fordham University with a B.A. degree magna cum laude in 1963, Phi Beta Kappa and received the E.C.A.C. Scholar-Athlete Award. In 1966 he received his J.D. cum laude from the University of Pennsylvania. In 1967 he received his Diploma in Law from Oxford University, England, on the basis of his thesis entitled "Moral Justification for Civil Disobedience." Professor Lawry was an associate with Ecker, Seamans, Cherin & Mellott in Pittsburgh. Professor Lawry participated in the Fellows in Law and Humanities Program at Harvard during 1974-75. His courses at CWRU include Jurisprudence, Conflicts Resolution, Professional Responsibility and Administrative Law.

Professor Wilbur C. Leatherberry received his A.B. in June 1965 magna cum laude and as a member of Phi Beta Kappa from Adelbert College. He received his J.D. degree in 1968 from Case Western Reserve University, where he was second in his class, a member of Order of the Coif, and also a member of the Editorial Board of the CWRU Law Review. He joined the Legal Aid Society of Cleveland serving as Consumer Law Specialist upon graduation. In August 1971, he became Legislative Assistant to the Honorable Louis Stokes, Member of Congress from Ohio, and then joined the law faculty in 1973. His courses include Contracts, Insurance, Juvenile Law Seminar, Legal Clinic and Legislation.

CLASS NOTES

James L. Donaldson, '13, resides in Orange City, Florida, and has been active in community and church affairs in that community, since his retirement twenty-five years ago.

John W. Barkley, '14, was honored for his 65 years in the practice of law at the ninety-ninth annual meeting of the Ohio State Bar Association in May.

Charles D. Evans, '19, reports that he is still practicing law part-time in Akron after 60 years.

Lisle M. Buckingham, '19, has been awarded the Bert A. Polsky Humanitarian Award in Akron, Ohio. The purpose of the award is to give ongoing public recognition to those individuals who have given generously of themselves in helping others. Mr. Buckingham is the senior partner in the firm of Buckingham, Doolittle & Burroughs.

Henry L. Haner, '27, is entering his fifty-second year in the active practice of law. Mr. and Mrs. Haner celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last year.

Emmer Martin Lancaster, '27, was one of the recipients of the University of Akron's alumni honor award. Mr. Lancaster also received an award of excellence from the United States Department of Commerce, Office of Minority Business Enterprise, and a congratulatory resolution of the City Council of Akron, honoring his work in fostering minority business enterprise.

Willis L. Hotchkiss, '28, now retired from the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice, reports he "traveled extensively through the Soviet Union—including Siberia from end to end, going solo except for local Soviet guides when requested. Apprehended and tried as a spy on outskirts of Moscow. Cause: I was said to be first westerner to explore outskirts of an industrial complex. I waived the offer of the trial group to notify American Embassy and delay trial until representative of the Embassy arrived. Trial proceeded with excellent interpreter. Trial leader and six member 'jury' of Red Guards acquitted me."

Mr. Hotchkiss also drove over 3,000 miles with his brother through Kenya (his early home), Uganda and Tanzania. He is currently engaged in writing a book on the subject of nuclear weapons which will hopefully be completed this year.

James A. Logan, '30, was selected for inclusion in Who's Who in American Law, and the Dictionary of International Biography. Mr. Logan is a member of the Cincinnati Council on World Affairs. With his wife, he has traveled and studied abroad and expects to attend the annual conference on the Law of the World in Madrid.

Edwin D. Northrup, '33, retired as Assistant Vice President of Casavant Freres Ltée., organ building company in Canada, in January 1978, and is now doing consulting on a limited basis.

John Q. Jennings, '33, and Mrs. Vera Stewart were married on June 2, 1979. Mrs. Jennings is a consultant with Butterick Fashion Marketing Company and Mr. Jennings is president of John Q. Jennings Associates, international economic consultants, which he formed on his retirement from Singer Company in 1971.

CWRU LAW LIBRARY

Harry Jaffe, '33, Judge, Cuyahoga County Court of Common Pleas, received the award for excellent judicial service in Cuyahoga County from Chief Justice Anthony Celebreeze, at this year's annual meeting of the Ohio State Bar Association.

Alba B. Martin, '34, reports that he is enjoying his work as Consultant to the Department of State.

George M. Brown, '34, has served as a consultant to the law firm of Roubesh, Brown, Corlett & Ulrich since January 1977. He reports that his two sons, Don P. and Richard H., both CWRU law graduates, are partners with the same firm. Mr. Brown has also been re-elected as a Board member of the Ohio University Fund, Inc. for the fourth term of three years.

Fred R. Guarnieri, '34, remarried on September 15, 1978, in Cleveland. He is still in the general practice of law. He reports that his son, James, a graduate of Catholic University School of Electrical Engineering is now studying law at Dayton Law School. Though none of his other nine children are in law, all have finished college.

Jay S. Hudson, '35, retired in 1974 as Vice President of Employee Relations of ESB, Inc., in Philadelphia.

Lewis H. Jones, '36, retired from Harshaw Chemical Co. in 1971. He reports that he is "a good loafer in good health."
